BRITISH INDUSTRIES FAIR

Rallying Ground Of World Trade And Industry

Men of all nations will meet during the 1935 British Industries Fair at London and Birmingham, for the Fair has developed into an event even more important than an occasion for buying and selling. It is a rallying ground of world trade and industry.

DISPLAY OF JUBILEE EXHIBITS

In 1915 the number of exhibitors was 591. In London alone in 1935 there will be 1,550 exhibitors (thirty of whom have shown continuously since the first B.I.F.) and the exhibiting area will be six times as great as that of 1915. In the Engineering and Hardware Section at Birmingham there will be more than 1,000 exhibitors, and the exhibiting area available has been extended to 465,000 sq. feet—120,000 sq. feet more than last year. London is sending 756 of the 1550 exhibitors to Olympia and the White City, Birmingham 114, Staffordshire 55, and Scotland 47. Most of the foreign buyers will be from Holland, Belgium, Germany, Denmark, France and Switzerland. The Irish Free State leads among the countries within the Empire who are sending buyers, followed by Canada, India and South Africa.

The exhibits at Olympia represent the products of such industries as cutlery, jewellery, watches and clocks, silverware, electro-plate, glassware, china and pottery, leather and fancy goods, toys and games, stationery, paper and printing, etc., office appliances, sports equipment, scientific, optical, surgical, medical and dental instruments and appliances, photographic goods, musical instruments, wireless apparatus, chemicals and chemists' supplies, plastic goods, wringers and mangles; vacuum cleaners; foodstuffs; baby carriages, and hundreds of other products. The general sections of the Fair will once again demonstrate the alertness of the manufacturers of the United Kingdom and their readiness to produce new and improved goods.

New Ideas In Abundance

New ideas will be seen in abundance—a match that ignites itself; a camera for instantaneous colour photography; a small camera that takes either snapshots or moving pictures, and is also a projector; a piano that can be played in bed; a new nail (even the nail is a subject for the inventor's attention); a box that refuses to allow face powder to spill; Silver Jubilee neckties, shirts, and pyjamas, and so on.

At the White City will be displayed every aspect of the British textile trade, our leading export industry. The British manufacturer, stimulated by the competition of other countries, is producing to-day better articles than ever before; often at prices which are at least on a level with inferior goods. Britain is the world's best customer for she buys more imports than any other country.

The fact that 1935 is the year of the King's Silver Jubilee will also have an important influence on the Fair, incidentally because of the display of topical Jubilee exhibits, but mainly because the Empire countries will be more ready than ever to support an enterprise which has done so great a service to Empire trade.

plan of his country against the British, and the last of its kings, he was sent in exile to the Seychelles, whence he returned to become the popular and respected benefactor of his race, but in European clothes, a Christian and a churchwarden, and honorary head Chief of the Kumasi people. Now, before a great assembly of Ashanti, his son, also called Prempeh, is to be installed as "Asantehene" and custodian of the Golden Stool.

GOLDEN STOOL OF ASHANTI

Restored To Post Of Honour

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Feb. 8.

The Golden Stool of Ashanti, which remained hidden for a quarter of a century, is to be restored to its pristine post of honour in Kumasi. The rejoicing of the Ashanti is likely to be hardly less enthusiastic than that of the Ceylonese when last autumn the Duke of Gloucester restored to Colombo its ancient Crown and bejewelled Throne. But the Golden Stool of Ashanti is no ordinary throne. It is too sacred to be sat upon. The most that the line of kings that ended with Prempeh might do was to sit on a neighbouring stool and rest an arm on the stool of gold. The stool is "sunsum," or the soul of the people, and it arrived among the Ashanti in miraculous fashion. When King Prempeh was defeated by the British and sent into exile the stool was hidden, and for many years, in spite of long search by diligent but misguided officials, it was not seen again. It was accidentally discovered in 1920, kept in safe custody, and publicly carried in 1931 at the funeral of Prempeh, then no longer official king, but once again the greatest chief in the land.

Few lives have known stranger vicissitudes than his. The cham-

BAD FEET

THERE is no need for you to suffer with your feet in any way. If they hurt, swell or perspire, or if you do a lot of walking or standing, bathe your feet every night and morning in tepid water and rub Zam-Buk herbal ointment well into the soles and between the toes.

Zam-Buk not only keeps the tissues sound and muscle pads flexible, but it soothes the nerves, along which trouble is "telegraphed" to the rest of the body, causing headaches, backache and even digestive trouble. Get a box of Zam-Buk today and use it regularly.

Zam-Buk is also a marvellous cure for eczema, ulcers, itch, pimples, bad legs, poisoned wounds, cuts, burns, piles, aches, pains, etc.

Some Recent Orders

WUSIH-SHANGHAI ROAD
NEARLY COMPLETED

Construction work on the projected Wushi-Shanghai Highway will be completed by the middle of next month and omnibus service will be operated on April 1st. It is learnt at the Kiangsu Provincial Department of Reconstruction.

Four main stations will be established at Wush, Changshu, Taichang and Shanghai, in addition to smaller stations at the various stops. An order for 40 omnibuses has been placed in Shanghai by the Wush-Shanghai Motor Service Company.—

CONSTRUCTION IN HUNAN TO BE SPEEDED UP

Hsuehow

The Provincial authorities are expecting the arrival here this week of Mr. Tseung Yang-fu, Provincial Commissioner of Reconstruction for chekiang and concurrently Director of the Highway Construction Bureau for the five Southern provinces of Kiangsi, Chekiang, Anhwei and Fukien, who has been entrusted by General Chiang Kai-shek with the planning of a highway to connect Shenchow, western Hunan, with Kwelyang, provincial capital of Kwelchow.

PROGRESS IN KIANGSI

Nanchang.

A total of over 4,500 kilometers of highways has been constructed in Kiangsi province during the past year (1934). Mr. Kun Hsueh-sul, Provincial Commissioner of Reconstruction, announced in the course of a report on reconstruction, at the weekly memorial service at Provincial Government House yesterday.

The provide more facilities for communications. Mr. Kung advocated the dredging of over 5,000 li (1700 miles) of waterways in the province. While the Yushan-Nanchang section of the Chekiang-Kiangsi Railway will be completed by the end of this year, work should also be started on the Nanchang-Pingsiang section in Western Kiangsi, he added.

SHANGHAI AND CANTON CONNECTION

Nanking.
Direct long-distance telephone service between Shanghai and Canton will be made possible by April 1, it is learnt at the Ministry of Communications.

For the development of better communications between the two cities, installation work was started last October under the direction of the Ministry and is making swift progress at both ends. After inspecting the International Radio Station at Chenyu and the Shanghai Telephone Bureau, Mr. Teng Tsung, Director of the Canton Telephones Bureau and member of the Kwangtung Provincial Automatic Telephone Committee, is expected here shortly to make arrangements for the conducting of test service in March.

The total outlay for the installation, it is reported, amounts to $700,000. The sum will be equally borne by the Ministry of Communications and the Kwangtung Provincial Government.—

The battle against noise goes on apace. In the first signal victory was won by the Minister of Transport in his edict against traffic noises at night, a second victory is being won by Dr. Oscar Faber, consulting engineer to the Bank of England. Only it is being won so quietly that very few people know anything about it at all. For the first time in history, a steel-framed building is arising completely silently in the City of London.

The steel-riveter is generally admitted to be the worst enemy with which we have to contend in this battle against noise. This is the opinion of an age which is well able to boast of its connoisseurship in every sort of pandemonium. Perched aloft on the half-assembled skeleton of some gigantic block of flats in Mayfair or offices in the City, there seemed to be no escape from him. His attitude gave him undisputed sway over far larger area than that held by his rival of the pneumatic drill in the ravaged streets far below.

Complicated Business.

But there seemed nothing to be done about it. Steel-framed construction for building of any size has come to stay, and the promised transformation of London is only just beginning. Fortunately for us, as we shall see, one of the first big buildings in the City to be reconstructed was the Bank of England. The work of rebuilding is a very complicated business; the difficulties presented by the site and necessity of maintaining the usual routine of the Bank during the rebuilding make it a very lengthy one as well. Already it has been going on for seven years. The ingenuity exercised by Sir Herbert Baker in adjusting a vast new interior covering four acres to Soane's original facade is a very noteworthy achievement. writes a correspondent.

But planning was not the only

Five Countries Traversed

During the last month, the unique pipe line which has been constructed by Messrs. Iraq Petroleum Company, Limited, to bring crude petroleum from its oil fields at Kirkuk, in Iraq, to the Mediterranean ports of Tripoli, in Syria, and Haifa, in Palestine, was inaugurated on a scale commensurate with the circumstances of the undertaking. Since the line passes through five countries, viz., Iraq, Syria, the Lebanon, Palestine and Transjordan, there have been, five opening ceremonies, the first having been performed on the 14th instant by King Ghazi of Iraq, at Kirkuk, at the first of the pumping stations which have been constructed at intervals along the line, there was a ceremonial luncheon at Damascus, attended by the President of the Syrian Republic, and the opening ceremony of the northern terminal of the line at Tripoli was performed by the French High Commissioner, Comte de Martel. A similar ceremony was performed at Haifa on January 22 by General Sir Arthur Wauchope, the British High Commissioner for Palestine, and finally on January 24, H.E. The Amir Abdullah of Transjordan attended a ceremonial luncheon at Amman. Thus one of the oldest known sources of the oil which plays so important lines which bring the oil from Kirkuk to the Mediterranean can run together in a south-westerly direction for about 150 miles to Haditha, on the Euphrates, having crossed the Tigris at Fathal. At Haditha, the line bifurcates, one pipe traversing the Syrian desert to Tripoli, a distance of about 375 miles, and the other traversing Iraq and passing through Transjordan and Palestine to Haifa. The length of the line from Haditha to Haifa is about 470 miles. The work involved in the construction of the line, has been carried out by Messrs. Iraq Petroleum Company, Limited, whose chairman is Sir John Cadman, G.C.M.G., D.S., in about three years, and at a cost withstood and closely approximating to the anticipated figure of £10,000,000. The Iraq Petroleum Company, should be mentioned, is a combination of the Anglo-Saxon Petroleum Company (Shell) Group, the Compagnie Française des Pétroles (French Group), the d'Arco Exploration Company (Anglo-Portuguese Group), the Near East Development Corporation (American Group), and Messrs. Participations and Investments, Limited, so that the successful completion of the work is a notable example of the value of international co-operation.

The Kirkuk oil fields, known in Biblical times, lie some 160 miles north of Baghdad and the two wells at Baba Gurgur, the field being out of control for several days, and drilling continued until the spring of 1931. By that time it had been established the

The operations of the Department of Public Works, New South Wales, are of the most diverse character; in addition to the design and construction of water supply, sewerage, harbour, road and bridge works, the Department has charge of Burrinjuck hydro-electric and Port Kembla steam power station, has for some time past supervised operations at Welsh Island Government Dockyard which was turned into a trading concern some years ago, prepares designs for schools, hospitals and other buildings, and undertakes surveys and the preparation of plans and the testing and inspection of cement, steel, cast-iron and other materials and products.

The last-published annual report of Mr. G. W. Mitchell, Director of Public Works, which has recently come to hand, shows that at the end of the year under review, namely, June 30, 1933, public water supplies were in operation in 87 towns, that 15 towns were sewered, and that storm-water channels had been constructed in 16 towns. The cities in the Metropolitan and Hunter River District are not included in these figures. Complete schemes of water supply were in progress in six towns, and augmentation and reticulation extensions were carried out during the year in many others; furthermore, two sewerage schemes were brought to a conclusion, while similar schemes were in progress in seven towns.

Harbour Works

Among other harbour works the eastern breakwater at Port Kembla was extended 49 ft, making a total length of 3,255 ft, while submarine rock breaking was continued on the bar and a several wharves at Newcastle for the purpose of increasing the depth of water. Dredgers visited various river entrances and harbour mouths, and in the process of maintaining the channels brought up 3,242,331 tons of material.

The Burrinjuck and Port Kembla power stations continued to operate satisfactorily, and the sales of energy generated at the former plant amounted to 18,391,689 kWh, an increase of 8 per cent over the total for the previous year. The energy sold at Port Kembla totalled 8,149,433 kWh, an increase of 2.3 per cent.

Early in 1933, the Government decided that the Walsh Island Dockyard and engineering works should cease operations as a trading concern, and, when the report was written the disposal of the plant was in progress. The repairs to dredger plant have been transferred to the works of the Department at the Dyke End. The Dockyard floating dock, however, is to continue to be available, but for docking purposes only, the work of cleaning, painting and repairing of ships being out to private firms.

The estimated value of the materials sampled, tested and inspected by the Testing and Inspection Section amounted to £395,787, and the fees received in respect of these services totalling £5,834.

the Kirkuk structure, which has been explored by the sinking of some 30 wells, would suffice to meet needs for many years. Subsequently drilling was continued and still continues, on a smaller scale. During the period of intensive drilling from 1927 to 1933 progress was made in the formulation of the pipe-line project. Surveying commenced in January, 1928, and the general decision of the route was reached in the autumn of 1930. Sufficient data were subsequently made available for the hydraulic and mechanical design of the pipe-line to be proceeded with, and the first physical demonstration of the line, by means of a model, was carried out by three survey parties in the summer and autumn of 1931.

Messrs. Marconi's Wireless Telegraph Company, Limited, Electra House, Victoria - embankment, London, W.C.2, have received an order from the High Commissioner for India, in London for the supply and erection of a 20-kW broadcasting station at Delhi. Work on the manufacture of the equipment is to commence immediately at the Marconi Works, Chelmsford.

Messrs. The Buell Combustion Company, Limited, 49, Moorgate, London, E.C.2, have secured a contract from Messrs. Imperial Chemical Industries (General Chemicals), Limited, Widnes, for the supply of an Allan-Buell turbo-dryer (Buttner system). The dryer is specially designed to deal with products in the form of crystals, powders or pastes, and allows a very delicate handling of the materials.

Messrs. Richard Dunston, Limited, Thorne, near Doncaster, have received orders from Leeds owner for a motor barge, to be employed in carrying coal on Yorkshire waterways, and for three barges measuring 77 ft. 6 in. by 18ft. 6 in. lift, for London owners. Messrs. Dunston have now 12 vessels under construction at their Thorne yard.

Messrs. Morris Motor, Limited, Cowley, Oxford, have received orders for Morris industrial engines from Messrs. John Birch and Company, Limited, London; from Messrs. Mawdsley's Limited, Dunsley; from Messrs. J. H. Holmes and Company, Limited, Hebburn-on-Tyne; and from Messrs. John Forsythe (Terrazzo), Limited, Belfast.

Messrs. International Combustion, Limited, Aldwych House, Aldwych, London, W.C.2, are installing a new boiler in the Freeman's Meadow generating station, Leicester. This completes the equipment to be installed in the boiler house already containing three pulverised-fuel fired boilers.

supplied five years ago by the firm. The new unit will be of the Lölupco single-pass type, 38 tubes in width and seven tubes back to front, capable of a normal evaporation of 120,000 lb. per hour, maximum continuous evaporation of 180,000 lb. per hour, and peak load for two hours at 200,000 lb. per hour; the steam pressure being 360 lb. per square inch at the superheater outlet, with a total steam temperature of 800 deg. F.

Messrs. The English Electric Company, Limited, Stafford, have secured a contract from the Bradford Corporation for 15 A.E.C. English Electric double-deck, 60-h.p. trolley omnibuses for service on the Duckworth-lane route. The electrical equipments will be manufactured at the Company's Bradford Works, and the bodies at the Company's Dick, Kerr Works, Preston. The chassis will be made by Messrs. The Associated Equipment Company, Limited, Southall, Middlesex.

Messrs. Holden and Brooke Limited, Sirius Works, Manchester, 12, have recently received from India three contracts calling for a total of 55 motor-driven centrifugal pumps.—

Dignified Retort

Paris is a good spot for a schmozzle, especially for the American woman who knows little French and is not tactful in tipping her taxidriver.

The driver got out of his machine and said one or two things about the 25 centimes he had received.

The American understood little but gathered from the driver's tone of voice that it was hardly a declaration of love he was making. He paused to find the right adjective when the American drew herself up with dignity and snorted: "Oh, je suis, suis-je?"

THE AFFAIRS OF CELLINI

The Story Of A Great Lover, A Great Artist—The Most Charming Rascal Of All Time

(By LEWIS ALLEN BROWNE)

He took my hand and led me to the rose arbour.

Benvenuto Cellini, Florence, 1500-1571, was the most gifted goldsmith of the 16th century, but equally, noted as a fighter and as a notorious lover. In his prime when he has found his one love in the court of the Duchess of Florence, and the Duchess, at the same time, is determined to make him her lover, he is on the list of men doomed to be hanged. The Duchess is trying to save him, when an emissary comes from Venice with a beautiful girl, to make grave charges against him.

The Duchess of Florence gave but one glance at Cavalier Baudini and then stared at the very young and very beautiful girl beside him. The girl was nobly born, as one might see at a glance. The Duchess smiled inwardly, for she guessed the nature of the complaint, and the charge against Benvenuto. What girl of tender years could withstand the charms of Benvenuto when he smiled at her and seemed to look into her very soul?

Alessandro promptly took interest upon seeing the beautiful girl who stood patiently, eyes downcast. Both youth and beauty in femininity—always interested him. The Duchess noticed this with amusement.

With a great show of ceremony, Ottaviano introduced the emissary, who then hesitated, upon seeing the Duchess, and finally said to her, "Your Excellency may not care to hear the story—it is not a pretty one."

"Yes, yes, my Lady, we will excuse you," Alessandro said, eagerly.

"We have heard many stories, and not all pretty ones," the Duchess then stared at the girl. "Who is the lady? Why is she here?" she demanded.

"I would, I might spare the mention of her name," the emissary pleaded.

Both the Duke and the Duchess remained stonily silent and so, realizing that he had no encouragement in withholding the girl's name, he continued:

"She is the younger daughter of the royal house of Vacci, your Excellencies, and she has come to make her own complaint."

The Duchess pretended lack of interest while her nimble brain was alert to grasp every chance to defend Benvenuto, so determined was she to make him her lover for a while, at least, before he was ordered hanged. The Duke smiled encouragingly at the girl and motioned her to come forward.

A Complaint
"We will hear your complaint, Signorita," Alessandro said, with an attempt to be sweetly gracious. "We beg you not to be frightened."

Signorita Florence Vacci, she of Benvenuto's amorous escapade in her father's garden after he had escaped upon being discovered with Signorita Pretino and killing her fiancé, Count Sarza, looked bravely at the Duke and Duchess.

"I am not afraid, Excellencies," she assured them.

Ottaviano, eager to make this a grim accusation, was annoyed at the slowness and polite formality. He pressed forward and cried, "It is a story of shame, humiliation and an affront against the royal house of—"

"Is it your story, Ottaviano?" the Duke said, unsatisfied with Ottaviano's merely stepping back.

"No, sire."

"Is it your story, Signorita?" he asked the girl.

"It is my story, Excellency." "Then, if the emissary is willing, we shall let you tell it."

Still the girl hesitated and the Duchess, fearing that she might be too afraid to tell her story, gave her encouragement, because her curiosity was increasing.

"Come my child, you have no need to be frightened," the Duchess said, sweetly. She could be exceedingly sweet when occasion demanded.

"Since you insist on telling your story, my lady," the emissary said to her, "pray proceed."

Alessandro leaned forward, his mind more on the glorious physical charms of the girl than on whatever her story might be.

"I was seated," Signorita Vacci began, "in the garden of my father's palace, alone. The moon was high overhead and full, the perfume of the flowers filled the cool night air."

Alessandro thought, "Would I had been with her." However, he merely nodded with an exaggerated gravity.

"And as I sat thus, dreaming beside the lotus pool, he appeared."

"He? Who?" Alessandro asked.

"That monster, Benvenuto Cellini!" Ottaviano cried. The Duke turned and scowled at him.

"Do not interrupt," he scolded, and asked the girl to proceed with her story.

"It is not a story, Excellency," Ottaviano insisted. "It is a complaint."

"The charming narrator has not complained as yet. Be quiet and permit her to proceed. Your dream prince appeared, Signorita, from whence—over the garden wall?"

"I do not know, Excellency. I looked up and there he was, down the path, walking slowly toward me and smiling."

"You screamed for help, of course?" The Duchess had a hint of sarcasm in her voice.

"I tried to scream—at least I thought that I tried to scream, but my voice failed me."

"Hypnotized?"

"But you can't!" The Duchess was beginning to enjoy getting in these bits of help for Benvenuto.

"I—I think that I tried to run, but I seemed unable."

"I see. Your voice, and your legs failed you. How was your heart, my child?"

Cavalier Baudini became uneasy when the Duchess said this.

"He smiled at me, he looked at me. I seemed to have been hypnotized!"

"He actually hypnotized you?" Alessandro inquired.

"It seemed to be that."

"And after he hypnotized you, what did he do?" the Duchess demanded.

"He took my hand." The girl rubbed one hand with the other dreamily. "I can feel the thrill of his touch now," she murmured.

"He took you by the hand—go on, my child."

The girl smiled faintly at the Duchess and bowed slightly.

"He led me to the rose arbor, by the night shadow of the wall."

"He did, eh?" Alessandro cried.

"He took you thrillingly by the hand and led you to a dark rose arbor! Proceed, what then?"

"You hung back, of course," the Duchess murmured, with a faint quirk at the corners of her lips.

"I went along with him and we sat down, and he read to me."

"He hypnotized you, and then he merely read to you?" the Duke asked, and the girl murmured, "Yes, Excellency."

"He read to you—was it from papers or a book?" the Duchess asked, gently.

"A book, a small book he took from a pocket in his cloak. It had covers of finely graven gold, encrusted with jewels."

"Never mind about the book," said the Duchess, nervously. The description of the binding sounded too much like the work of Benvenuto, for safety. "What did he read?"

"A poem, a poem with such words as only Venus and Adonis might have spoken on their bridal night. I can remember them now."

"They should be worth the hearing, although poetry bores me," the Duchess murmured. "Repeat them, my good child."

"The girl hesitated but a moment, and then raised her eyes and recited:

"Give me, love, another kiss— passionately, searching bliss! Press again, those lips of thine— warmer, warmer, yet to mine! Thus in every vital part—"

The girl hesitated for a moment.

JUNK PIRACY SEQUEL

Castle Peak Affair
RecalledTHREE CHARGED WITH MURDER

A sequel to the piracy of a junk off Castle Peak on January 15, in which one man was killed, another man and three women were injured was the appearance of Chan 'Cho, Ho Wing and Kwok Kan before Mr. A. W. G. H. Grantham at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday charged with the murder of Chan Tai, with others not in custody.

Mr. W. J. Lockhart Smith, the Assistant Crown solicitor who prosecuted, stated that the other injured man who was taken to the Kowloon Hospital to have his injuries X-rayed ran away, fearing that he was going to be put to some sort of torture. Despite all the police could do he was not seen again. Information to hand however, is that the unfortunate man is now at Nam Tao being more or less insane.

The defendants were not represented.

In outlining the case Mr. Lockhart Smith said that on the night of January 15 three fishing boats were anchored off Castle Peak about 300 yards off the shore. One belonged to the dead man, one to the first defendant and the third to the second defendant.

Towards the end of last year, as the evidence would tend to show, there had been a quarrel between the parties. Ho Wing was accused of having stolen some fishing nets and there had been ill feelings ever since.

Deceased Attacked

On that night Ho Wing and Chan 'Cho's boats were seen lying side by side at Castle Peak. There was no trouble when the deceased went to sleep, the exact time not being known, but at about 10 p.m. the deceased's wife was awakened by the noise of the anchor being weighed and the boat was about to set sail. The second defendant was seen on board then.

There were three holds on board the junk and the deceased, his wife and the children occupied the last one.

The dead man was aroused and on going up to investigate he was set upon by five men. He was pushed back into the hold but put up a fight. He was struck on the head with a chopper and the first defendant fired a revolver at him which however did not go off. He was struck on the head with the butt.

General Affray

Then followed a general affray in which the deceased's brother took part. The two men (deceased and the brother) then jumped into the water and the three women on board were attacked. The two men were then picked up by a junk.

One junk went to the assistance of the stricken people and the raiders then left in a stolen dingy.

The injured were then transferred ashore and Chan Tai died. The brother then went to Castle Peak Police Station to make a report of the affair. He was brought to Kowloon Hospital for treatment and when he was told that he would be X-rayed he ran away fearing that he would be put to some sort of awful torture.

One Man Arrested

The following day the first defendant was met by an Indian Constable and he was noticed to be suffering from an injured hand allegedly to have been inflicted in the fight.

He was taken to hospital and detained for quite a while and on his information the other two were arrested. All three were subsequently charged. The first accused implicated the other two.

Medical Evidence

Medical evidence was given by Dr. Lam Shin Kwong to the effect that he went to the Pingshan Police Station and treated a man with an incise wound which could have been inflicted with a chopper.

Dr. K. H. Utley deposed as to the identification and post mortem conducted on the deceased. There were several bruises on the legs and hands and a scalp wound on forehead. The wounds could have been inflicted with sharp instrument. The base of the skull was fractured.

The cause of death was haemorrhage following upon injuries to the skull and shock following upon immersion.

When questioned the doctor stated that the other cuts on the hand suggested that the deceased had warded off blows from a sharp instrument.

Dr. Greaves testified that he received a chopper from Sgt. Davies and upon examination found several long human hairs and blood stains on it.

Dr. Bau Thu Zung medical officer of the Kwong Wah Hospital said that on January 16 he examined three females, Chan Ko, Leung Ho and Chan Ho. The injuries so found on their persons were consistent with having been inflicted with a chopper.

Injured Man Disappears

Dr. Luk Chuen Sun medical officer of the Kowloon Hospital stated that on January 16 at about 10.30 a.m. Chan Man was brought to him by Inspector Elston for treatment. The man had three contused wounds on the head of an arrow-head shape.

On the night of January 23 the man disappeared from the hospital and had not been heard of since.

Leung Kam widow of the deceased gave evidence of the attacks and the attempt of the raiders to sail away with the junk. Last year there had been some trouble between Ho Wing and them due to the former having stolen some fishing hooks. On the night in question her husband on going up the hatch was pushed down again. She then told the court of the attacks made upon the two men. She testified that she saw first defendant but did not know him. The second and third defendants were known to her. Later on a junk went to their help. Two other women were also injured.

After the robbers had left a chopper, a knife, a file and two empty shells were found. Nothing was stolen from the boat and at the identification parade the second and third defendants were picked out by her.

After Inspector P. Kellet of the Pingshan Police Station had given evidence his Worship adjourned the case till March 6 and 7 at 2 p.m.

THE H. K. A. A.
DINNER DANCEEnjoyable Social Function

The Rose Room of the Peninsula Hotel presented a gay and animated scene last night when the Hong Kong Automobile Association held its annual Dinner Dance.

There was a large number of guests present and they quite evidently enjoyed themselves. An excellent dinner was served by the hotel during and after which the guests danced to a well arranged programme. The very sociable atmosphere that usually attend the A.A. Dinner Dances will not be forgotten by those who were present.

Everybody last night went prepared to enjoy themselves and there is no doubt that each one left with the feeling that it had been a jolly good function.

WORKMAN KILLED

The new Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank building was the scene of a tragic accident yesterday morning when a workman was killed by shock when changing an electric bulb on the ground floor. The unfortunate man was a Northern Chinese mason.

DEATH INQUIRY

Constable's Death

A Coroner's inquest into the circumstances surrounding the death of Ngan Yam, Chinese Constable C324, as the result of gunshot wounds received, was held yesterday at Central Magistracy.

Mr. W. Schofield sat as Coroner and was assisted by the following jury:—Messrs. C. M. Souza (foreman), Lo Tak Chung and Ho Yu Tin.

It will be remembered that deceased was found dead on the hillside near Bayview Police Station.

Medical Evidence

Dr. Shaw, medical officer of the Victoria Mortuary stated that on January 26 at 9.20 a.m. he made a post-mortem examination on the body of deceased, P.C.C.324. Deceased was identified by Chan Mul in the presence of witness. In witness's opinion, death was due to (1) gunshot wounds of the skull and (2) shock and haemorrhage to (1). Witness also opined that the revolver was fired at a very close range.

Deceased's Wife In Country

The next witness called was deceased's wife. She said that her husband, had sent her money in sums of $3, 2 or 1 each month. Deceased had never threatened to commit suicide in the letters that he wrote to witness.

Sergeant Scott identified the revolver as one that was issued to the local Asiatic policemen. The revolver belonged to deceased.

Chan Mul, concubine of the deceased was next called to the witness box. She said that she had lived with deceased for 2 years. They had been in fairly good terms during the time they lived together and had no children.

Some time last year, witness had a quarrel with deceased. Deceased came home at about 5 a.m. and he was weeping. At first deceased refused to say what the matter was but after some persuasion, deceased asked witness to go to the stairway and she would know what was the trouble with him. Witness went to the stairway and there found an opium jar. Deceased was sent to hospital where he was kept for four days. He always complained of being in financial difficulties but had never threatened suicide.

Deceased was, extravagant with wine, but he did not smoke opium. On the day he killed himself, he was quite cheerful and at a little past 8 he went out to dinner. It was about 11.50 p.m. on the same day that witness saw deceased again, when he was supposed to have finished his 8 p.m. to midnight duty. He came in to change into civilian clothing. He wore European white shorts and white coat, and wore a service belt with his revolver. He said that he was going to see a friend on some urgent business.

Witness did not know that deceased was in debt, but she knew that the rent for their cubicle was two months in arrears.

Witness said that she could not think of any other reason why he had committed suicide except that deceased was hard-up and in financial difficulties.

At this stage, his Worship adjourned the hearing until a later date.

MURDER SUSPECTED

Decomposed Body Found
On Hillside

A murder suspected to have been perpetrated sometime towards the end of January, has been revealed by the discovery of the remains of an elderly woman on the hillside below the Shek-O Road. The remains were in a badly decomposed condition but it has been ascertained that the body was that of a woman aged about 50 years. It is believed that the unfortunate woman was Chan Sam, a cake hawk of 31 Main Street, Shaukiwan, who was reported missing on January 26.

NAVAL RATINGS IN TROUBLE

Arthur Lawrence Savage, a 36-year-old first-class stoker of H.M.S. Delight, and William Henry Horner, a 30-year-old first class stoker of H.M.S. Dainty were charged before Mr. Grantham at Kowloon Magistracy yesterday, the former with driving private car No. 3615 in Hankow Road without a license; driving the car without the permission of the owner; and with willfully damaging the door of private car No. 3045; and the latter with damaging the door of car No. 3045, and for using insulting language to Inspector Nicolls in the charge room of the Water Police Station.

In answer to the first two charges the first defendant stated that as far as he was aware the car did not move from the rank where it was parked. With regard to the third charge, he pleaded that he did not damage the door willfully. The second defendant also pleaded not guilty to damaging the door, but pleaded guilty to the last charge.

The case was remanded at Inspector Nicolls' request.

THEFT FROM BERNARD

Sentence of two years' hard labour, to be followed by two years' police surveillance, was passed by Mr. Wynne-Jones at Central Magistracy yesterday on Ng Kam, 34, unemployed, who was charged with theft from Bernard of Harwich.

It was stated that defendant entered Bernard's, at Gloucester Arcade, on Thursday afternoon, and asked to be shown some shirt. The salesman, Mr. W. Snowball, proceeded to the mezzanine floor to fetch the goods and while there he had occasion to look down, and he saw the defendant in the act of closing a rattan basket.

Mr. Snowball became suspicious and followed the defendant. He found the basket to contain a pair of flannel trousers, three pull-overs and a fountain pen.

Defendant had three previous convictions for stealing and had been under police supervision during 1932.

MURDER THREAT

Before Mr. Wynne-Jones at Central Magistracy yesterday, an unemployed youth, named Wong Ki-chai, aged 17, charged with threatening Chan To, fishmonger, with injury to his person if he made a report to the police relating to malicious damage to his (Chan To's) fish.

It was alleged that defendant poisoned the fish and threatened to murder Chan To and his family, in the country.

Defendant admitted the charge but later stated that he had no other option as "so many people gave evidence before the Inspector."

His Worship decided to hear the evidence and fixed the hearing for Tuesday at 11.30 a.m.

TRAFFIC OFFENCES

Yesterday morning being "traffic day" at both Central and Kowloon Magistracies, a number of motorists were summoned for various offences.

Tam Ho, driver of taxicab No. 18, was summoned for driven along Wong Nei Chung Road, between the Yeung Wo Hospital and the race stands, at a dangerous speed, having before Mr. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy. He was fined $30.

Defendant admitted two previous convictions, and was warned by His Worship that if he appeared again on a summons of dangerous driving he might lose his licence.

Mr. L. E. Lammert, (jnr.) driver of private car No. 582, was fined $10 for having driven along Queen's Road East, from west to east, between Arsenal Street and the Wanchai Market, which had been temporarily closed by an order from the Inspector General of Police, during Race Week.

Abdul Ghanil, driver of private car No. 1643, was also fined $10 for a similar offence, summoned for speeding at 40 miles per hour through the controlled area in Nathan Road at 7.45 p.m. on February 13. He was fined $15.

J. F. C. Mackay, 47 Gramplan Road, was summoned on counts of (a) driving motor-cycle No. 204 in Wuhli Street on February 18, without an appropriate licence and (b) driving with inefficient brakes.

Defendant admitted both offences and was fined $3 on the first charge and $5 on the second.

POSSESSION OF ARMS

A 17-year-old unemployed youth, Tang Hing Cheung was charged before Mr. Wynne-Jones at Central Magistracy yesterday with the possession of two revolvers and five rounds of ammunition without permit from the Hon. I.G.P.

It was stated that defendant went to Canton during the Chinese New Year and returned with the arms in his possession. He was arrested at the Yuen On Wharf on his arrival.

The case was adjourned until Thursday afternoon.

R. V. Strijevsky, driver of private car No. 4072, was fined $5 for leaving his car unattended in Pedder Street at the main entrance to the Hong Kong Hotel for 29 minutes.

Kowloon Cases

Before Mr. Grantham at Kowloon Magistracy, Wing Sing, licensed driver of lorry No. 2850, was summoned for overtaking another lorry in the controlled area in Nathan Road.

A fine of $5 was imposed. The defendant alleged that there were three buses at the bus stop opposite the Majestic Theatre, and as he thought there was no danger, he passed them. He saw no lorries on the road.

FEBRUARY
WEATHERRoyal Observatory
Report

February was a changeable month; from the 1st to the 11th a spell of damp, cloudy weather was experienced; only 5.5 hours of sunshine were recorded during this period, and rain or drizzle fell every day. On the 12th the weather cleared up, and no measurable amount of rain was recorded during the remainder of the month.

The 12th to the 17th were days of almost unbroken sunshine; from the 18th to the end of the month the weather was mainly cloudy and mild.

The mean temperature for the month was 61.0 deg. F., which is 2.1 deg. more than the normal. A maximum of 78.3 deg. was recorded on the 22nd and again on the 28th. The minimum of 42.9 deg. reached in the early morning of the 12th, was the lowest temperature recorded in February since 1925.

The mean relative humidity was 80 per cent., against a normal of 79 per cent. Sunshine amounted to a total of 109.2 hours (14 hours in excess of the normal), more than half of which was recorded during the fine spell of the 12th to the 17th. The maximum wind velocity was 48 m.p.h. on the 8th. The total rainfall for the month was 1.15 inches, which is 0.82 inches less than the normal. Up to midnight on February 23 the total rainfall for the year was 2.22 inches, against a normal of 3.02 inches.

Annual Dinner Last Night

The Hong Kong Hotel roofgarden presented a lively and animated scene last night on the occasion of the annual dinner of the St. David's Society, which was a great success.

There was a large and distinguished gathering present and among the guests were: Sir Thomas Southern, C.M.G., and Lady Southern, Mr. Justice MacGregor and Mrs. MacGregor, Sir Henry Pollock and Lady Pollock, Mr. A. S. MacKichan (President of St. Andrew's Society), Mr. B. H. Hallows (President of St. Patrick's Society), Hon. Sir William Shenton and Lady Shenton and other prominent members of the Chinese and other communities.

The place was gaily decorated with the Welsh flag (the red dragon of Wales on a green and white background) being prominently in display. The table decorations with the leeks (the traditional emblem of Wales) and daffodils (an emblem more recently associated with the Principality) were profuse.

After dinner dancing was indulged in to the strains of the Hong Kong Hotel orchestra and the spirit of conviviality prevailed throughout the evening.

HOSPITALITY UNBOUNDED

Mr. A. Morris (the President of the Society) was in the chair and was supported by the Vice-President (Mr. E. R. Price) and the following members of the Committee:—The Rev. E. G. and Mrs. Powell, Messrs. David Davies, E. C. Thomas, R. R. Davies, D. M. Richards, E. Lloyd Jones, D. F. Davies and Mrs. J. G. Hooper (Hon. Secretary and Treasurer).

After a hearty repast, the President proposed the toast of H.M. The King H.R.H. the Prince of Wales and the immortal memory of St. David:

PRESIDENT'S SPEECH

Addressing the company, Mr. Morris said: Gentlemen:—To-day throughout the Universe Welshmen assemble whether their members be many or few to pay homage and honour to the memory of St. David, the patron Saint of Wales.

We yield to no race in our King, our Country and our Faith. It is "Our Day," the day for extolling the beauties and merits of Wales, for there is no sphere in which we as a nation have not excelled. To-night, it is my privilege to represent Wales in this distant outpost of the Empire and while I do not propose to address my remarks in the Welsh language, for which I am confident you are grateful, yet it is incumbent upon me to say a word of Wales in the reign of Edward I.—"CROESAU GWRESOCAF IN GWAHODDEDIGION AC I BOB CYMRO YN BRESSENNOL YMA HENO."

Here, I would make reference to the revival and survival of the Welsh language and literatures, for following the conciliation of Wales in the reign of Edward I—I use the word "conciliation" advisedly, for Wales was never conquered—the ancient language of the country was spoken west of the Severn, and the 14th and 15th centuries are remarkable for producing some of the finest bards and historians.

The Welsh language was made a compulsory subject in the curricula of the Schools, facilities which have assisted in the acquisition of the language as well as for its fixity. As a natural sequence, the establishment of National Libraries and Universities followed and Cardiff, Swansea, Aberystwyth, Caermarthen and Bangor became centres of learning.

The Eisteddfodau represents the bardic contests of music, poetry and learning for which Wales is celebrated.

Wales is the land of songs. Welsh choirs are world renowned, and the enthusiastic passion for music can be attributed to the Singing Schools which are a feature of the Chapels and Churches of the country. Our national instruments the Harp and the Crwth have disappeared, but the natural mellow, musical voices of the people remain unimpaired.

We are very proud of our country and foreigners—unconsciously perhaps—pay tribute to Wales and acknowledge its people as the dominant race of Britain. Who is there here present who has not used the words Britain, Great Britain with a feeling of pride and self-satisfaction—words derived from "Briton" our ancestors, men and women who stubbornly resisted the Roman invasion and slowly retreated into the mountain fastnesses of Cumberland, Cornwall and West Wales, where later they withstood the English attempts at invasion and conquest. Yet the independence of the country was sacrificed to and for an infant—the first Prince of Wales—typifying the truth of the saying, "A little child shall lead them."

The beauties of Wales are proverbial and places like Anglesey, Conway, Llangollen, Snowdon, Aberystwyth, Llandudno, Tenby, Gower conjure up in the memory scenes of beauty difficult to match and certainly unequalled.

Pious Memory of St. David

Before proposing the Pious memory of St. David, I claim your indulgence while I give a few brief details of his biography, particulars which you must have heard on more than one occasion. Few historical facts are known regarding the saint's life and actions, and the dates both of his birth and death are purely conjectural, although there is reason to suppose he was born about the year 500 and died at a great age towards the close of the 6th century.

According to his various biographers he was the son of Sandde, a prince of the line of Cunedda, his mother now ranks as a Cymric saint. He seems to have taken a prominent part in the celebrated synod of Llanddewi Brefi, and to have presided at the "Synod of Victory," held some years later at Caerleon-on-Usk. At some date unknown, St. David, as penitential or primate of South Wales, moved the seat of ecclesiastical government from Caerleon to the remote headland of Mynyw, or menevia, which has ever since, under the name of St. David's (Ty-Dewi) remained the Cathedral city of the western sea.

St. David founded numerous churches throughout all parts of South Wales, of which fifty three still recall his name, but apparently he never penetrated farther north than the region of Pwys, although he seems to have visited Cornwall.

With the passing of time the Saint's fame increased, and his shrine at St. David's became a notable place of pilgrimage, so that by the time of the Norman Conquest his importance and sanctity were fully recognised, and at Henry's I's request he was fully and formally canonized by Pope Calixtus II about 1120.

I commend to you a few of our national dainties—Mead, Welsh Cakes, Welsh mutton and Welsh Rabbit. I am inclined to the opinion that from the popularity of the last named delicacy the majority of you are Welsh in taste if not by birth.

I thank my committee for the great honour which has been conferred upon me in electing me to the Presidential chair.

To our energetic Secretary for the time and trouble and work involved in preparing for this function and to our guests for gracing the occasion with their presence.

It has been remarked that there are more guests than members. This is as it should be. The Welsh Society in Hong Kong is small numbering some 35 members, yet their hospitality is as unbounded as the blue expanse of Heaven.

The Rev. E. G. Powell then read telegrams of congratulations from the Singapore and Shanghai branches and Hong Kong's reply, after which musical items were contributed by Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Richards, Miss Iris Phelps and Mr.

ROYAL BALINESE DANCERS

To Appear Shortly At The Queen's

Beautifully formed—as all Balinese girls are—Ratu Idja and Dewi Ratri who are now twenty, commenced dancing at a very early age. In fact, Ratu Idja entered the temple when she was only six. She lives for her art as all truly great artists do.

The girls are both supple and graceful. There is art in those graceful movements of the body and limbs—and culture—something very rarely seen in the dances of the West and many of those of other eastern races.

Life on tour, seen through our Western eyes, is hard for them. Every day they practice from nine in the morning till one in the afternoon. They then have their lunch, consisting of rice with fish and chile, and may rest till four when they have to prepare themselves for the performance in the theatre. They must diet and are not allowed to eat much till the last performance is over.

The Management arranges for two free days every fortnight during which they are allowed to see the town and do some shopping under the care of Princess Dewi Maya. The company have their car, a Chrysler, with them on the tour for this purpose.

The girls of the Royal Balinese Ballet are all virgins—as all temple dancers must be—and they are never out of the sight of Princess Dewi Maya. They look on life through particularly interested eyes, the youngest of them being only just sixteen. From tourists they have heard of America and Europe and are keen to see all these places.

East and West will meet in the near future—and I wonder which will receive the most interesting impressions.

HOT GOSPELLER Famous Evangelist In Hong Kong

The world famous evangelist, Mrs. Almee Semple McPherson, better known as the "Hot Gospelier," arrived here yesterday morning, en route. Uniform optional but belt and pouches must be worn.

Interviewed by Pressmen on her arrival, Mrs. McPherson said that she had not yet decided how long she would stay in Hong Kong—probably a few hours or possibly two or three days. She intended visiting Canton with a view to purchasing land there for a mission station, for which funds had been raised in America.

She indicated that during her stay here she would pay a visit to the grave of her first husband, Robert Semple, at Happy Valley. She thought Canton was a more suitable centre for missionary work in South China.

Mrs. McPherson is on a world tour which is mainly for the purpose of seeing how mission funds raised in America for the Far East are being utilised.

SEA-POWER STILL VITAL TO BRITAIN

There can be no dispute that Britain needs an Air Force adequate for both insular and Imperial purposes. But while the Air Force has work of its own to do, it cannot render the Navy's work superfluous. Each arm has its own function and neither can supplant the other. To air-power belongs the defence of our coasts and the protection of our cities. It is as though fate has drawn a line a certain distance out at sea inside which our ships would become relatively important. The case for air-power as the essential element in local defence is overwhelming, but air-power cannot be equally responsible for long-distance defence.

To Great Britain this latter aspect of security is of decisive importance. Fifty thousand tons of food and 100,000 tons of raw material reach British shores every day. The threat to these supplies comes from the sea, and can be met only by sea-power. The argument that warships, built to face naval ordnance, are at the mercy of bombs dropped from aircraft which are themselves highly vulnerable, deserves all the scorn naval men pour upon it. The conclusion which the facts force upon every thoughtful mind is that sea-defence and air-defence are both essential to Britain; and a survey of the facts is the best antidote to the folly of engendering a false and wholly artificial rivalry between sea-power and air-power. A generation is growing up that never knew the war and the stern lesson it taught us that Britain's very existence is dependent on the security of Britain's overseas food supplies. A map which shows the long sea routes will demonstrate that no superiority of air-power could protect these vital arteries against an enemy who had gained command of the sea.

COMMAND OF THE HOME
FLEET DESTROYERS

Captain E. C. O. Thomson, D.S.O., has been appointed to succeed Commodore G. S. Arbuthnot, D.S.O., as Commodore, second class, in command of the Home Fleet Destroyer Flotilla. Captain Thomson will assume command about the end of this month. Commodore Arbuthnot has relinquished his appointment owing to ill-health.

There are three flotillas of destroyers in the Home Fleet, of which at present the Second Flotilla is at Gibraltar, the fifth has accompanied the contingent of the Fleet visiting the West Indies, and the sixth is at its home ports awaiting the delivery of new vessels of the Fearless type with which it is to be reconstituted.

Captain Thomson commanded destroyers all through the War, serving in the Lizard, Petard, and Verdun. He was decorated for gallantry in command of the Petard at Jutland. He was promoted to captain in December, 1924, and commanded the Third Destroyer Flotilla in China in 1928-29. He was Captain-in-Charge at Singapore in 1929-31, and of the St. Vincent training establishment in 1932-34.

RITES AND CEREMONIES

General Chiang Kai-Shek's
Proposals

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)

Nanking, Feb. 22.

Three interesting suggestions on rites and ceremonies have been submitted by General Chiang Kai-Shek, President of the Military Affairs Commission, to the Standing Committee of the Central Executive Kuo Min Tang.

Firstly, General Chiang recommends that a definite size be fixed for the Party emblem and the National flag. The detailed points of differentiation between those used by Party, Government or military organs and those used by the public in general should also be definitely decided upon. Under specific conditions, the people should be permitted to hoist only the National flag.

Secondly, in any ceremonies held by the General authorities, such as visits to the Sun Yat Sen Mausoleum or the weekly memorial service, special seats should be reserved for the President (Chairman) and the various members participating in the ceremonies. The President should sit in the middle, and the various members should sit, according to their ages, either from the left to the right or in several rows. Special labels should be made on the seats in the auditorium, so that any person attending the ceremony may find his seat easily. Decorations or medals should be worn according to definite rules. Any violation of the rules should be rectified, by the Master of Ceremonies immediately.

Thirdly, a few newspapers at present still refer to the President of the National Government by name. This, being derogatory to the national dignity, should be prohibited by order of the Central Party Publicity Committee immediately. Henceforth, the President of the National Government should only be referred to in the newspapers as the President of the National Government or as President Lin. In no case, however, should his personal name only (that is, Lin Sen) be used.—China United Press (My mail).

ETON MEMORIES
OF A VERGERCentury Of Service
By Father and Son

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Feb. 8.

Mr. William Henry Long has completed 50 years' service at Eton College, where he is a Verger at Lower Chapel in South Meadow Lane. He was at the Old Chapel for six years, and has been at the present Chapel for 44 years.

During his 50 years' service Mr. Long has seen thousands of Eton boys come and go. He has served under six Lower masters, four Headmasters and three Provosts.

The one outstanding event in his Eton career was last June, when he was presented to the King and Queen on the occasion of their Majesties' attendance at service in Lower Chapel. This was to mark the continuous service to Eton of over 100 years by Mr. Long and his father.

For 64 years his father was the official messenger at Eton College. He started in 1834 in the days before the railways, and one of his duties was to accompany Dr. Goodall, the then Provost, on stage-coach journeys.

Although he is nearly 78 years of age, Mr. Long walks daily from his residence in Slough to Eton. He is still hale and hopes to continue in service for many years to come.

SEA TRAGEDY OFF
CASABLANCA

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, March 1, 4.30 p.m.)

Paris, Mar. 1.

Fourteen were drowned when the Spanish fishing cutter Ursul was sunk off Casablanca and a French lifeboat that rushed to her assistance capsized. The captain and four of the crew of the French lifeboat perished and four bodies of the Spanish cutter were washed ashore. Five of the crew are still missing while others managed to reach a small island from which, however, they have not yet been recovered in view of the raging storm.—Transocean Kuo Min.

Police inspectors to-day completed their collection of the second half month rents from tenants, who give the money for the air defence of Canton. Altogether landlords give up one month rent as a sort of premium for the insurance of their houses and buildings in the event of aerial bombardments.

The amount collected from rents is not officially made known yet, but it is in the neighbourhood of four million dollars. The amount is to be turned over to the Air Defence Committee and will be used for the purchase of anti-aircraft guns search light and sound detectors. Pursuit planes are essential for air defence, as they can drive away bombing planes. These planes are being taken care of by the Army Air Corps.

Cruisers Return Here

The two light cruisers of the Whampoa squadron, Hai Chi and Hai Shen, returned here this morning from Hong Kong after a cruise around Bocca Tigris. Chinese newspapers stated that the two warships returned here yesterday, when they in fact only put in this morning. The two ships did not return direct to Canton but anchored at Bocca Tigris for several hours for manoeuvring purposes.

Rear-Admiral Kiang Yen Chung (Kiang Sai Yuen) commanding the two cruisers, made an official landing at Hong Kong last week and called on H.E. Sir William Peel, the Governor, who returned the call on board Admiral Keung's flagship, the Hai Chi. The two ships underwent a minor overhauling at Taikoo Dockyard.

Students Subdued

Over forty students of the Sociology Department of Sun Yat Sen University sat for a re-examination in English this morning following their failure in the examination last term. The ring-leaders who agitated against examination and tried to oust the head of the Foreign Languages Department found that they were in the wrong.

Mr. Chow Lu, President of the University, wants to raise the English standing of the undergraduates in view of the fact that most works on all fields on learning are written in English especially sciences, sociology, engineering. The Foreign Languages Department has been added since last term to help the students in improving their knowledge of English, German and French.

VISITORS TO LONDON
THIS YEARAttraction Of The May Celebrations

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Feb. 8.

More visitors from abroad will come to London in 1935 than have ever before visited the Metropolis in any one year. This is the forecast, based on all the available information, of those whose task it is to cater and prepare for foreign visitors to Great Britain.

The total number of visitors from the Dominions and foreign countries to London during 1933 was 214,000. In the first nine months of last year the total was 233,000, and it is expected that final statistics for the year will reveal that the total was more than 300,000 in excess of the previous figure.

It is already apparent that the "Silver Jubilee" of the King will bring to London a greater influx.

Yet London is never still. No matter how many visitors come to the capital of the Empire there is reasonable certainty that there will be accommodation and to spare for all of them.

12,000 Bedrooms

The total number of bedrooms available is beyond computation from available figures. A selection of 27 hotels, however, has been made in order to estimate the amount of accommodation for the barest minimum number of visitors of different tastes. Those hotels have between them a total of 12,000 bedrooms. There are 127 major hotels in Inner London, each with accommodation ranging from 40 more than 1,000 bedrooms. That number is more than doubled if hotels within half an hour's journey of London be taken into consideration.

During the five best holiday months of the year—to say nothing of the other seven—one hotel bedroom may be occupied by five or even more visitors, thus virtually multiplying greatly the apparent available accommodation. Numerous visitors also, having "done" London, tour through the British Isles for the sake of their scenery.

Small private hotels, boarding houses and apartments further increase the numbers.

REUNION AFTER A PERIOD OF FIFTEEN YEARS

ALOISI HANDS OVER TO GERMANY

Hitler Attends Ceremony

London, March 1.

The ceremony of the return of the Saar territory to Germany took place this morning. Herr Hitler is flying to Saar and to-day is being devoted to speeches and celebrations. The actual transfer was made by members of the League Committee of Three, Baron Aloisi and Ministers Lopez and Cantillo, to Herr Frick in the Government building at Saarbruecken outside which had assembled flutters on the masthead at the top of the building.

Inside, Baron Aloisi delivered a brief speech in which he said, "In the name of the League of Nations and in my capacity as President of the Commission of Three which has regulated all questions connected with the Saar, I have the honour to-day to complete the actual transfer of the Saar territory to the Reich. This closes a page in history and with it disappears an element of unrest in the relations among the peoples. I express the wish that the solution of this problem, reached after long and difficult negotiations, and carried out in the spirit of loyalty and mutual understanding, may prove a good omen for the quiet and peace of Europe."

—British Wireless.

Saarbruecken, March 1.

The handing back programme follows the signing of the document by members of the League Committee and the Minister for the Interior Frick, stating that by virtue of the League decision the Saar, in totality, will be handed over to Germany at 10.15 a.m. when Frick announces the transfer by radio.

At 10.30 a.m. Frick gives a radio command to hoist the flag and the German flag will flutter at the mast in front of Saarbruecken's new town hall.

Rejoicings started early this morning throughout the Saar. Huge crowds thronged the streets of Saarbruecken all night long and uniformed leaders of the Storm Troops, Black Guard and political organisations together with the Labour Service spent a busy time preparing for the arrival of their members from Germany. The police are now wearing the regulation German Police shako while many officials have already exchanged the Saar black, white and blue cockade for the Reich's one of black, white and red.

A tablet has been erected at the frontier, Bellevue, on the main road from Paris to Mainz, inscribed "German fidelity, German faith and German customs can never be wrested from us." The inauguration of the tablet was the occasion for patriotic demonstration.

QUESTIONS SOLVED

Addressing the League Committee of Three when the document recording the handing over of the Saar was signed at 9.30 a.m. Frick declared that the German Government was convinced that with the settlement of the Saar question, important steps towards the peaceful co-operation of the peoples were taken. He declared, "we will never again tolerate German land being torn from us forcibly."

After broadcasting the news of the transfer throughout Germany, Frick, over the wireless, ordered the German flag to be hoisted on the Government building in Saarbruecken, with a vast crowd outside cheering Germany and Hitler while simultaneously throughout Germany sirens of factories and ships were blown as churchbells tolled the hour. German and Nazi flags were hoisted in every town and city after which Frick formally entrusted Buerckel with the administration of the Saar in the Town Hall of Saarbruecken in the presence of Goerring and Goebbels. Frick, in his speech, said that the solution of the Saar question by the Saar population itself showed that the struggle for right need not be fought with weapons.

COMMUNAL QUESTION IN INDIA

New Delhi, March 1.

Mr. Rajindraprasad, President of the Indian National Congress, and Mr. Jinnah, President of the Muslim League, jointly made a statement announcing a breakdown in the negotiations on the communal question and regretting that despite their best efforts they were unable to find a solution satisfactory to all parties concerned.

The statement added: "we realise that communal concord is essential for the progress of the country and can only hope that forces will arise which will make any future attempt more fruitful."

REPRESSIVE MEASURES IN THE TYROL

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)

Vienna, Feb. 28.

New repressive measures have been taken by the Italian authorities against the German-speaking population in Southern Tyrol. Press reports from Bozen state that the prefect has ordered the dissolution of all German Catholic Journeymen's associations throughout the district. The reason given is that the associations received their orders from their headquarters in Cologne, Germany, and had lately displayed activities which were incompatible with the national aim of penetrating the province with Italian culture and language.

It appears that the associations displeased the authorities by organising lectures and amateur theatrical performances in German.

GOLD REACHES A NEW HIGH RECORD

Exceptional Demand On The Continent

London, Feb. 28.

With British Control adopting the role of a mere onlooker, sterling further declined to-day under the pressure of Continental withdrawals.

The action of the Control has given rise to rumours on the Continent that the British authorities desire to see sterling lower, especially in terms of dollars.

According to the well-known firm of merchant bankers, Robert Benson & Co., the persistent bearishness on the Continent as regards sterling is based on a deep-rooted conviction bred from their own experience that every currency not linked with gold must sooner or later depreciate.

The American Exchange Fund has been selling dollars to keep pace with the depreciation of sterling, which explains why sterling has fallen more in terms of continental currencies than of dollars.

Paris expects that President Roosevelt will raise the price of gold in terms of dollars if sterling falls to 72.75, dragging the dollar in its wake.

Little credence is given in London to Paris rumours of an Anglo-American understanding behind the fall in sterling, the objective of which is alleged to be to initiate a drive to compel the gold bloc to surrender.—Reuter.

ONE SHILLING RISE

London, Mar. 1.

As expected gold reached a new high record to-day when there was an increase of one shilling to 145/1d.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer answering a question in House of Commons yesterday emphasised that the external or gold value of sterling was a very different thing from the internal purchasing power. He held out no promise of early stabilisation of the pound and refused as a matter of public policy to give any account of the operation of the Exchange Equalisation Fund.

Newspapers attribute the present high value of gold to the exceptional demand on the Continent and point out that despite the fall in the pound Britain has been free from the consequences attending currency depreciation elsewhere. The cost of living instead of rising, as in countries pursuing inflationary policy, is in fact to-day lower than it was in 1931. Among the reasons for this are balancing of the budget and the establishment of a better trade balance.—British Wireless.

AVERTING A CRISIS

Banks Assist With Loans

Shanghai, March 1.

Acting in concert with General Chiang Kai-shek in Hankow, the local Chinese bankers and business leaders yesterday met and mapped out measures for preventing an economic crisis.

The Central Bank, the Bank of China and the Bank of Communications have issued $4,000,000 loans to the native banks, to help the latter to tide over the settlement due this month.

The three leading Chinese banks have decided to continue to make loans to the smaller organisations with a view to alleviating the financial situation.

Meanwhile a meeting of Chinese industrial and commercial leaders has passed a resolution calling for action on the part of the banks to assist trade and commerce generally.—Reuter.

KUNG SQUASHES RUMOURS

China's Exchange Problems

Hankow, March 1.

In an interview with Reuter this afternoon, Mr. H. H. Kung squashed the rumours to the effect that his and Mr. T. V. Soong's visit had any bearing on China's exchange problems saying that "this was definitely not the case."

He stated that this afternoon's talk with Chiang was connected with the military budget and also Szechuen's monetary affairs. Regarding the exchange uncertainties, he said that "the government policy had been voiced time and time again and there was absolutely no change."

SINO-JAPANESE QUESTIONS

To Be Settled Through Diplomatic Channels

Tokyo, March 1.

Contrary to the previous policy of dealing with local Chinese administrative matters as for example in the Tangku Truce negotiations, the Japanese Government will enter into diplomatic negotiations with the Nanking Government for settlement of pending questions declared Mr. Hirota in the Diet, divulging that China had proposed last spring through Consul General Suma that negotiations should be opened as they have been going on since last year.

CHINA AND JAPAN

Alleged Terms Of Rapprochement

Shanghai, March 1.

The "North China Daily News" gives prominence to reports of alleged Japanese terms of rapprochement, including the replacement of General von Seeckt and his 300 German military assistants by 300 Japanese officers and 1,400 warrant officers to train the Chinese army, the engagement of Japanese nominees by the National Economic Council instead of the present Western advisers, many of whom were sent out by the League of Nations, the funding of all or part of the unrecognised Japanese loans to China, notably the Nishihara Loans, and the complete elimination of anti-Japanese propaganda from the text-books of the Chinese schools. In return Japan offers to float a loan to assist China in the present emergency.—Reuter.

FRENCHAM CASE GRAVITY

British Minister's Message

Nanking, March 1.

Messages from Sian declare that Sun Wai-jui's troops are successfully pushing southward against the Reds under Hsueh Slang-chien who entered Sienan from North Szechuen. The messages announce the recapture of Mienhsien, adding that Nancheng (Hanchung) and Pocheng are now cleared of Communists. All these places are north eastward of Ningkiang where the missionary, Mr. Frencham was captured.

A Hankow telegram states that the acting Consul General, Mr. Archer conveyed a message from the British Minister, Sir Alexander Cadogan, to General Chiang Kai-shek yesterday stressing the gravity and importance of the Frencham case and urging him to do everything possible in the matter.

Up to the present there has been no word from Mr. Stockley who is investigating the matter in Sian.—Reuter.

PARLIAMENTARY SYSTEM

Sir John Simon's Lecture

London, Feb. 28.

The French Premier, M. Flandin, presided at the lecture which Sir John Simon delivered in Paris to-night on the British Parliamentary system.

Sir John expressed the view that every Constitution tended to incorporate national qualities and defects. It might be that the English constitutional system illustrated certain British characteristics—want of logic, a certain contempt for formality, great respect for the lessons of the past, a deep sense of realities, and, above all, moderation which results in no-one claiming the literal fulfilment of all his rights beyond the limits imposed by good sense.

Strictly speaking, there was no British Constitution, but only modified results of long experience (Parliamentary government). This allowed certain liberties to be taken with it in a new situation, the danger of abuse being checked by the inherent respect for tradition. All he claimed for the British system was that it suited the British people and was the result of long experience of British conditions. It was like an old garment which had come to fit the figure of its owner, but could not be copied and worn with equal convenience by everybody.

Sir John pointed out that Britain and France were two great European countries which at a time of change had preserved democratic and parliamentary systems.—British Wireless.

ABDICATION OF KING

Unrest In Siam

London, March 1.

It is highly probable that the King of Siam will remain firm in his determination to abdicate, particularly when he receives official notification of the refusal of the Siamese National Assembly to comply with his demands, according to the "Times."

It is expected that if the King formally abdicates his 11-year-old nephew, Prince Ananda Mahidol, will immediately be proclaimed king, with a Council of Regency acting until he reaches the age of majority.

NO DECISION YET
The Siamese Delegation has informed Reuter that the King has not yet decided to abdicate. The decision will be taken in a few days following the receipt of messages from Bangkok giving the Assembly's decision regarding the King's demands.

ABDICATION SOON?
Unless an unexpected last minute change occurs in the situation, the King of Siam will hand in his abdication within two or three days. This is the outcome of the rejection, by the National Assembly in Bangkok, of his prerequisites to reconsider the decision to relinquish the throne.—Reuter.

WARM TRIBUTE BY PRINCE

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, March 1, 4.30 p.m.)

London, Mar. 1.
Within forty-five minutes of his return to London last night, the Prince of Wales was attending the anniversary dinner of the National Trust for places of historic interest or natural beauty. He paid a warm tribute to the value of this organisation which he pointed out was purely a private body registered as charity and without any government grant, but which, however, worked harmoniously with the Office of Works.—British Wireless.

SIR JOHN SIMON'S BERLIN VISIT

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, March 1, 4.30 p.m.)

London, March 1.
Sir John Simon will proceed to Berlin at the end of next week, according to reliable information received here on Friday morning. It being stated that two or three days will probably be allowed for the foreign secretary's consultations with Hitler.

Sir John's proposed visit to Moscow and Warsaw is said to be highly probable but at the same time it is also probable that Sir John will return to London direct from Berlin to report on the results of his consultation with the German Chancellor before the Cabinet will decide whether he should proceed to Moscow and Warsaw or not.—Transocean Kuo Min.

WEEK-END FOOTBALL

Pardoe Leaving By Somersetshire

Hong Kong will soon be missing several well-known Army players by the departure of the Troopship Somersetshire, the most noticeable of whom is Gunner Pardoe of the Artillery and the Colony's pivot and Interport Captain. Pardoe will be sadly missed, particularly by the Army. He has been playing good football for the last two or three years and his recent Interport display amply justifies the opinion that he is one of the best, if not the best, centre half Hong Kong has seen for quite some time. I am sure that all Hong Kong football followers will wish Pardoe the best of luck in his new sphere and that he will enjoy many more years of the game he plays so well.

The chief attention during the week end will be centred in the Senior Shield between S. China "A" and the Club on the Caroline Hill to-day.

Club is faced with the problem of surmounting a stone wall. Will they be able to do it? Will the honours of lowering the Chinese colours fall to their lot?

S. China up to the present have been lucky enough to avoid defeat. Their recent displays have not been very encouraging. They seem to be suffering from some sort of lethargy and have been unable to get rid of it. Their intermediate line in particular has been far from satisfactory and their forward line has lost their old sting.

Club, faced with a stiff proposition, I hope, will not allow the fact to worry them, and will just forget about the inferiority complex when they take the field. They have a hard working forward line and with Howe leading his men well and with the wingers giving him necessary support, they should enter the field with confidence. This game is bound to produce football of a high standard, and should be played at a fast rate. The odds are slightly in favour of the Chinese.

Chinese Derby

S. China "B" are playing the China Athletic in a League game at the Sookunpoo ground and are also down to meet in the semi final of the Senior Shield.

The game to-day will be typical of the Chinese play. It should be fast and exciting. China Athletic have been gradually forging ahead in the last few matches and if Chau Ah Fai and Chen Chen Wo will be able to make the trip down from Canton the Athletic's prospects will be enhanced very much.

The Kowloon-St. Joseph's match on the mainland will be a very even affair. Both teams are well served by some Army players but have not been figuring so well of late. Kowloon is a shade better than the College team and ought to be able to gather the two points.

Another semi final, team, in the Police, will be seen in action against the Lincolns. It seems the guardians of the law have dropped off in form. If they want to keep their stocks up it's up to them to show that they are really a semi final team. Lincolns ought to be able to make them work. The types of play are totally different. Lincolns with their close passing and methodical distribution will be up against the long passing and goal getting type of the Police. I believe the Lincolns will be able to make it.

The only game to-morrow is that between the Gunners and South China "A" in the Senior League. The Gunners will be without the services of several old players and I do not think the Chinese will meet with any opposition.

OLYMPIC GAMES VENUE

Rome, Feb. 28. The Foreign Office has reiterated that Italy has withdrawn her claim for the allotment of the 1940 Olympic Games to Rome.

Apparently the Italian delegate at Oslo has not yet received any instructions for he has not withdrawn the claim at the meeting of the Olympic Games Committee meeting here.

It was announced from Rome yesterday that Italy would support Japan's claim to the games.—Reuter.

EXHIBITION TENNIS

Japanese Stars At Play

The two Japanese tennis stars, S. Hayashi and T. Yoshioka, who recently participated in the Philippines "All-Comers" Tennis Championships, gave exhibitions on the Hong Kong Cricket Club ground yesterday when they were opposed to Tsui Wai Pui and S. A. Rumjahn respectively.

There was a comparatively small attendance and owing to the poor condition of the ground, the standard of play served by the visitors was not up to that expected. The ground was slippery and rendered footwork difficult and as a result the visitors were unable to produce their best form. They did, however, reveal now and then that they were players of no mean ability. Hayashi, who ranked as a better player than his colleague, possessed a very forceful forehand and his accurate placing and smashes were a delight to watch. He was opposed to Tsui Wai Pui whom he beat by 6-2, 7-5.

Yoshioka although not such a hard hitter as his compatriot, revealed a great variety of strokes but he was rather inclined to be erratic. He had as his opponent S. A. Rumjahn whom he just managed to beat by 7-6.

Of the local players, Tsui was not at his best, driving out on many occasions, particularly in the first set. He improved somewhat, however, as the game progressed, so much so that Hayashi had to go all out to capture the second set. During this set, Tsui's hard drives for which he is famous, became both effective and well placed and left Hayashi standing on numerous occasions. Hayashi retaliated with accurate placings and brilliant overhead work, with which he evoked rounds of applause from the spectators.

The Yoshioka-Rumjahn game produced a keen struggle with Rumjahn leading for the first eight games. Yoshioka was shaky at the start and allowed Rumjahn to run away with the first three games. He then settled down and his variety of strokes rattled Rumjahn into making numerous mistakes.

The doubles match between the visitors and S. A. and H. D. Rumjahn was a long and wearisome affair. The visitors proved themselves far too good for the cousins and won the first set by 6-2. Their combination was a delight to watch, while on the other hand the cousins were not at their best, particularly "S. A." whose shots found the net more often than not. After leading by 5-2 and when everything seemed over, the visitors eased up considerably and allowed the cousins to catch them up. However, the visitors eventually won by 9-7.

The results were:—
Hayashi beat Tsui Wai Pui—6-2, 7-5.
Yoshioka beat S. A. Rumjahn—7-6.
Hayashi and Yoshioka beat S. A. and H. D. Rumjahn—6-2, 9-7.

SCHOOL SPORTS

Wah Yan College Meeting

A very large number of school boys and girls were present at the Caroline Hill Ground, yesterday afternoon, when the Wah Yan College held their tenth annual athletic meeting and second inter-house competition.

In the course of the day's sports, Chung Chan Lam of the Green House created a new record in long jump by jumping 19 feet 11 1/2 inches, that is 1 foot 8 inches better than the former record.

Except for the weather, the meeting was a great success in every way.

The large number of events were keenly contested and many fine finishes were witnessed, especially among the junior boys.

The Senior and Junior House Championships of the College were won by the Green House with an aggregate of 504 points and 564 points respectively, while the Junior House was carried away by the Black House with 36 points.

In the Invitation Relay Race, which was opened to other schools and colleges, La Salle College came in first, getting little opposition.

The quickest-acting STOMACH REMEDY used by Doctors

Amazing evidence of the remarkable speed with which indigestion and stomach pains can be stopped has been revealed by medical experiments and X-ray photographs of actual cases. These prove the ingredients of "Bismarated" Magnesia to be the quickest-acting and most effective known to medical science. Within 5 minutes a teaspoonful of "Bismarated" Magnesia will soothe and relax your harassed stomach, relieve its tenderness and grow strong, until you can eat whatever you like and enjoy every meal without fear of wind and pain.

A NOTED ENGLISH DOCTOR SAYS:

"I find that 'Bismarated' Magnesia taken after my meals is the only thing that keeps me free from pain and discomfort, and I take it regularly. I often prescribe it for my patients, and have had very good results."

H.C. — M.A., M.R.C.S., L.R.C.P.

ANOTHER DOCTOR SAYS:

"'Bismarated' Magnesia gives excellent results and is the ideal remedy for stomach pains and acidity. It is particularly recommended for Dyspepsia, Gastritis, Stomach Pains, Flatulence, and even Stomach Ulcers."

Here is Health

"The user of Sanatogen is richly rewarded in freedom from languor, a gain of strength and activity and alertness of mind" writes Dr. C. L. Wheeler.

by taking SANATOGEN

This is the opinion that medical men have of Sanatogen; and when it is remembered that more than 25,000 physicians have written about the gratifying results they have obtained with Sanatogen, it becomes evident that you can trust this really exceptional tonic to help you, too.

Prof. Mann, formerly of Oxford University, explained the reason for the wonderful influence of Sanatogen on health in these words:

"A building-up process goes on in the nerves after the administration of Sanatogen."

Start improving your health to-day. Take Sanatogen, and notice how fatigue and nervousness disappear. Take Sanatogen, and in a few weeks you will feel and look better than you have done for years. Follow the advice of these physicians and enjoy once more that sense of youthful health.

ST. DAVID'S SOCIETY

W. I. Phelps, to which encores were demanded by the gathering. Mr. R. Davies then made a brief speech in Welsh.

THE GUESTS

The Vice-President, Mr. E. R. Price in proposing the toast of the guests said:

I hope that you will excuse us if we read into the presence of so many guests something more than a natural desire to please the Welsh friends who invited you here. Please do not disillusion us if we read into your presence a delicate tribute to a struggling little society, a society representing a little Principality which has also had to struggle to uphold its claims. In the same way that Wales has maintained its identity and its individuality so we as a Society, small as we are, are determined to carry on that tradition.

We welcome many Chinese friends. We have something more in common than an emblem, similar in name though not identical in form. I refer to the Chinese dragon and the Welsh dragon. Speaking of this dinner to a Chinese friend I asked him if he did not consider it strange that such a comparatively small area as the British Isles should produce so many national and county societies each celebrating their own national and county day. He replied: "as you know we Chinese always maintain contact with our native districts and our kinsmen; we see nothing but good in observances which tend to identify you more closely with your kinsmen at home, no matter how small a community you may be."

It is in the spirit of that reply that I am addressing you to-night.

Our English and other friends will pardon me if I do not refer to them by name. To some it may have come as a welcome surprise that our proceedings are not conducted in Welsh. I can only say that if a fluent knowledge of the Welsh tongue was a necessary qualification for speakers at these gatherings then I for one would not be addressing you this evening. I have only retained knowledge of a grace in Welsh plus the usual few swear words (laughter).

With this toast I associate the name of one who comes from another country which has also had to struggle to maintain its identity and its individuality. I refer to Mr. Justice MacGregor who will reply on behalf of the guests. The toast of the Guests was received with enthusiasm.

THANKS BY GUESTS

His Honour the Chief Justice Mr. A. D. A. MacGregor in replying on behalf of the guests in a brief but witty speech said that he was not competent enough for that important assignment—but nevertheless he would make it clear once and for all that he was not 75 per cent. Welsh but 100 per cent. Scotch as alluded. He had a delicate matter to explain as regards his Welsh tendencies. He had married a Welsh wife and a good one at that and whenever he had a opportunity to take a holiday invariably he would go to a Welsh place. His Honour then pointed out that Carnarvon was a Mecca for the Welsh people as during certain time of the year Welsh people flocked to this town.

His Honour said that he had one complaint to make. The Scotch, the English and the Irish all have had their national dish at their annual function. St. David was without their Welsh "rabbit" and he trusted that in future functions this would be included.

In conclusion His Honour thanked the St. David's Society for an enjoyable evening which was characterised by unbounded hospitality, good Welsh music and last but not least an excellent dinner.

The party then took to the floor and dancing was indulged in until the small hours of the morning.

AT THE CENOTAPH

At 11 a.m. yesterday an impressive ceremony took place at the Cenotaph when Mr. A. Morris (President) laid a white floral tribute in the form of a Welsh harp at the base on behalf of the Hong Kong St. David's Society.

An additional wreath was laid by R.Q.M.S. Burton on behalf of the

RAUB MINING COMPANY

Extensive Sinking Projected

The follow telegram has been received by the Hong Kong Stock Exchange from Messrs. Derrick & Co., Local Secretaries in Singapore of the Raub Australian Gold Mining Company for publication in the Press.

"A detailed report by Mr. J. C. Coldham, the General Manager, was received by the Brisbane Board at their meeting yesterday. The report goes fully into a programme for extensive development, and also reorganisation of the Mine Plant, and the methods of working. The development programme comprises extensive sinking, cross cutting and driving, to extend and disclose reserves of ore, the reserves shown at last Annual Report having been exhausted during the past year. Further investigation of old shafts and workings will be also undertaken. The result of future developments will control the expenditure necessary to install the types of plant required. To carry out the suggested programme at the Mine, increased power will be required, and a duplication of the plant at the Power Station at Sempam is indicated. The cost of the complete suggested programme will be very considerable, and two Directors, Mr. DeBurgh B. Persse, Chairman, and Mr. R. C. Philip, will leave for the Mine this month to confer with the General Manager. Until the final approved programme is satisfactorily completed, the Directors consider returns cannot be maintained at last year's level, and unless recoveries of higher grade ore are soon obtained, decreased dividends must be expected during the next twelve months. A report to be issued by the Board, with further details, will be printed and issued to shareholders."

THE AFFAIRS OF CELLINI

"There was a great deal of it, all like that, Excellencies." "But he did not read, all the night through—what followed?" the Duke asked, eagerly.

"The cadence of his voice wove a magic spell about me. I do not know—perhaps I swooned, perhaps I dreamed—but I beg of you not to believe that I came here to make complaint, to bring charges. Nothing of the kind—I care not what I was ordered to do. I must tell the truth! I loved him—I love him now. Any time he cares to come to me in the garden, I pray that he may do so with great speed and safety!"

A Menace

The girl said this with startling vehemence and convincing emphasis.

Cavalier Baudini, the emissary, started with surprise and stared at the girl in amazement and embarrassment. He had brought her to make grave charges against Benvenuto Cellini, and there were grounds for such charges. Now it was impossible to prefer the charges, for the girl and spoiled it all.

"My Lady! My Lady!" she startled and confused emissary cried.

"I do not care. I have told the truth!" she said to him, rather heatedly.

The emissary turned to the Duke and the Duchess with a gesture of despair.

"This is all most unexpected, your Excellencies. Since I can not bring charges now, all that remains is for me to tender my apologies."

Alessandro and the Duchess bowed.

"You have our permission to retire," the Duchess said, wanting to scream with laughter over the way the thing ended.

After they had left the council chamber, the Duke, believing that he should show some severity, exclaimed, "If the emissary said that this man was Benvenuto, then I say that he is a menace!"

"The man was Benvenuto, your Excellency," Ottaviano cried, eagerly.

"With such a man at liberty, no woman can be safe," the Duchess declared, with mock seriousness.

"Ah, then my Lord will have him hanged at once!" Ottaviano said, eagerly.

"Why—er—yes—er—no—" the Duchess interrupted her husband.

"Not at once, my Lord," she said.

"What! You defend him?" Alessandro demanded, suspiciously.

"I defend him?" she cried, pretending great indignation. "I do not know him—I had but a word with him in ordering the golden plates to be speedily made. I am thinking of myself—about our reception to the Duke and Duchess of Milan. Are we to be thoroughly outshone by them just for the sake of hanging a man to-day who may just as well be hanged a week or so later?"

"N-o-o-o, that is true," Alessandro was glad to have this chance to put off the execution of Benvenuto.

"After all, it is most important that these Milanese swine cannot go back and report that we have but cheap silver service. And this Benvenuto did not murder anyone of great importance, did he?"

"Not at all—"

"A Venetian nobleman, Excellency," Ottaviano reminded him, still stubbornly fighting to have his enemy put out of the way.

"They are all nobodies in Venice," the Duchess observed.

"First, Benvenuto shall finish the golden plates for us. After that we may hang him at our pleasure. The finish of his beautiful handiwork shall mark the beginning of his doom."

"Neatly put, my Lady, neatly put. The finish of his handiwork shall mark the beginning of his doom."

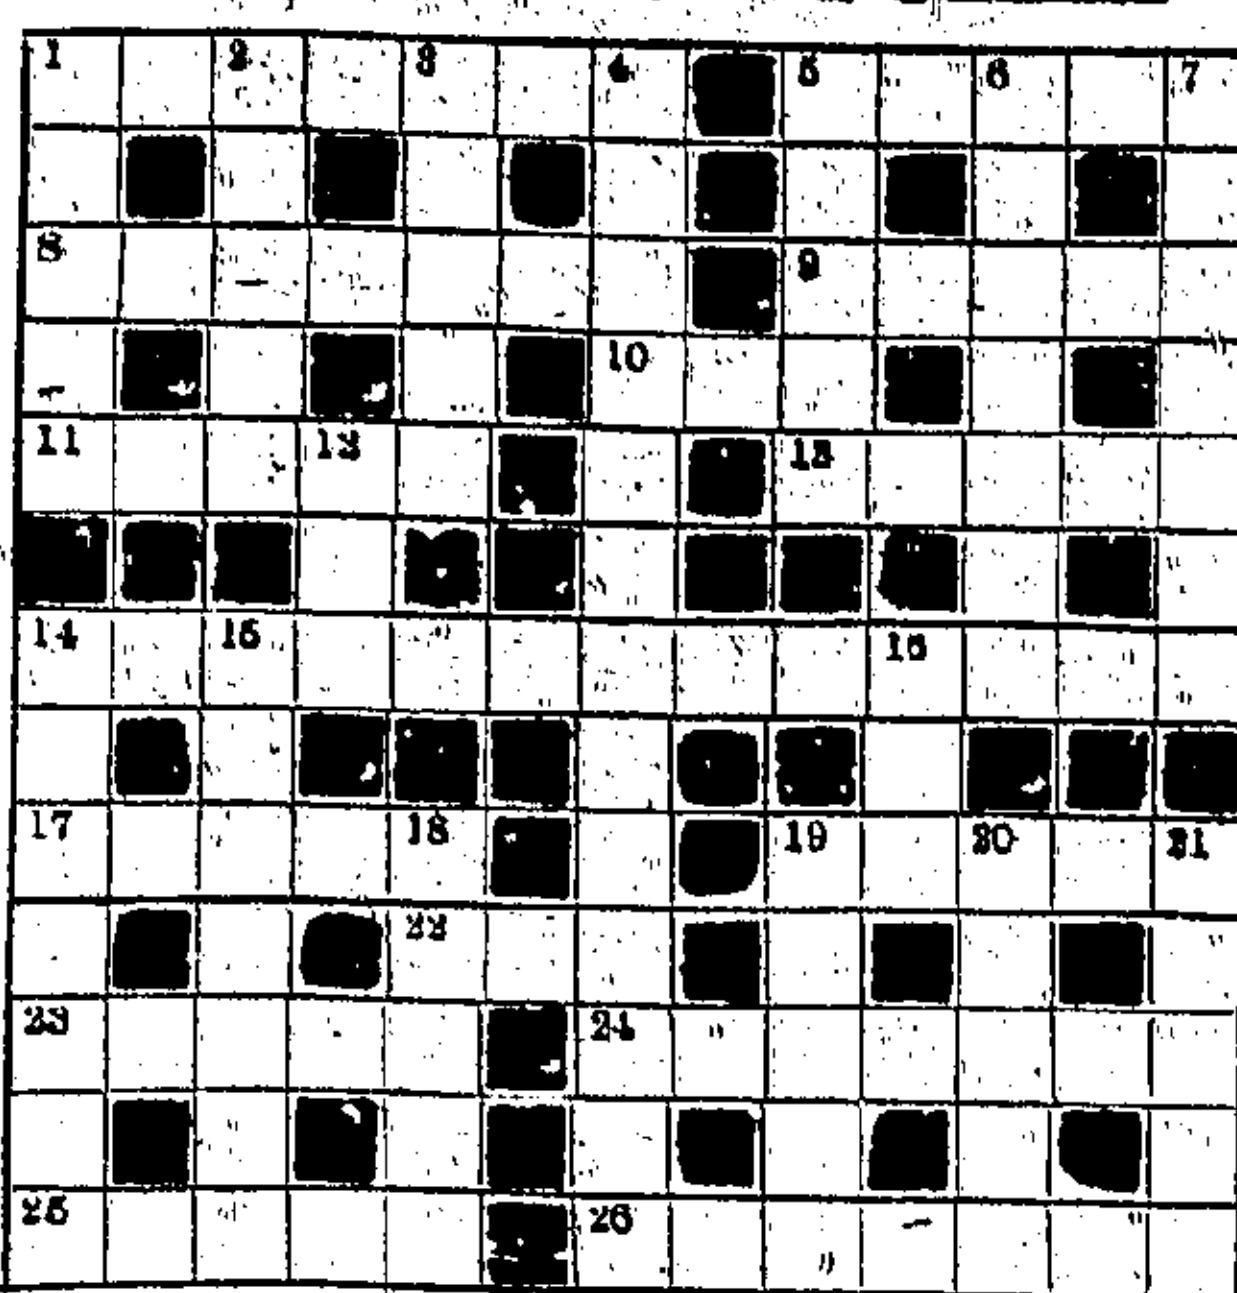

The Duchess, having been successful in her efforts to save Benvenuto from the noose, arose, bowed to Alessandro and departed, her retinue outside following her to the horses.

Chancellor Ottaviano was pacing angrily up and down, furious that he had been unable to bring about the death of Benvenuto. The Duke blotted out entirely the name of Benvenuto Cellini on the list of doomed men, then signed the order of execution of the others.

"But the most grievous offender of all—"

The Duke waved a hand for silence.

"I know, Ottaviano. You are evidently right in a great measure."

"He doubtless should have been hanged at once. But I swear to you that his next offence will bring certain death!"

There was a commotion outside and the Captain of the Guard announced that one of the body-guard of Count Maffio, nephew of the Duke, wanted to see him.

This was the guard ordered by Count Maffio to kill Benvenuto as soon as he, the Count, could get up and claim to have done it. The guard was afraid to engage Benvenuto in mortal combat and decided to report it all to the Duke, so that he would not have to run any risk.

"Well, and what now?" the Duke asked, thoroughly upset because he had been delayed in getting to his stables.

"My master, your Excellency, Count Maffio, your nephew, is near death from having been murderously assaulted by Benvenuto Cellini!"

"Assaulting a de Medici? He dare assault a de Medici? By the gods, he shall die at once!" Alessandro cried, his face reddening because of his sudden great wrath.

When Benvenuto forced a diet of rice on the nephew of the Duke, he did not do very well for himself. Follow to-morrow's installment.

MEASURES TO AID BUSINESS

Finance Minister's Help Sought

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)

Shanghai, Feb. 23.

Proposed measures to bring about a revival of business prosperity in Shanghai reached after protracted discussions by local commercial, industrial and financial leaders were submitted to Dr. H. H. Kung, Minister of Finance, for consideration and adoption yesterday morning.

Among these measures was a request put to the Finance Minister that the Central Bank of China be instructed to make loans directly to local commercial and industrial enterprises in order to enable them to tide over the present period of depression and make possible a gradual boom in China's domestic and foreign trade.

The suggestions were embodied in a memorandum which was presented by a delegation of six local industrial and financial leaders. They called on Dr. H. H. Kung at his Houli-Chui residence at 11, Telok yesterday morning. China United Press (My mail).
